

Economic Consultant, Harpist Feature Week's Assemblies

Assemblies next week offer a harpist and a musician. Dr. Clarence R. Winchell, American Economics Foundation consultant, will speak at Tuesday's assembly and Marcel Grandjany, harpist, will present a concert Thursday's assembly.

Dr. Winchell will be the first to campus several days to participate in the conference on economic aspects of the public school curriculum. He has a wide experience in education and has associated with the work of the Foundation for several years as a member of the Nationality he has promoted the United States. In his own being of economics in the high schools. He was the founder and president of the Audio Association of New Jersey.

He is a former instructor at Rutgers University and Glassboro State College of New Jersey. Grandjany, who appears on Thursday, began the study of the harp at the age of 10. A student of the famous Henri Reine, he won the coveted prize of the Paris Conservatory before his fourteenth birthday. At seventeen he made his debut with the Concert Lamoureux Orchestra, and during the same year he gave the first harp recital, winning great acclaim.

At the Sacred Heart Basilica in Paris, Grandjany was organist and conductor for several years, but returned to the study of the harp and decided to concentrate exclusively on this instrument, and to eliminate all limitations of its scope.

"To me," he states "the possibility of color dynamics, effects and scope of literature are endless with this beloved instrument of mine; it represents the entire orchestra."

Since 1938 Grandjany has been head of the harp department at the Juilliard School of Music, New York City, since 1943 he has been on the staff at the Conservatoire de Musique et l'Art Dramatique in Montreal, Canada. He has written songs, piano selections and a considerable amount of harp music. In France, England, Canada and in America his recitals have established him as the foremost harpist of our day.

Of Mr. Grandjany's pupils, many are already in permanent positions in the United States with major orchestras. In the field of popular music and jazz, the well-known harpists Bob Maxwell and Gene Blum are Mr. Grandjany's students.

HE WILL be heard in concert again Thursday evening at 8:15 p.m. in the Joseph Smith auditorium.

School Aims Values Vary, Says Lloyd

Editor's Note: Because of the pertinent nature of yesterday's assembly speech, the Summer University feels an obligation to print excerpts from Dean Wesley P. Lloyd's remarks on higher education. Portions of his remarks are as follows:

The deep political concern and rioting typical of university students of other countries stand in marked contrast to the lethargy of the average student of the United States.

Major variations in university patterns among the nations revolve around (1) higher education for the few or for the many, (2) idealistic versus pragmatic curriculum and method, (3) the nature of student out-of-class activities, (4) education for individual development versus education for manpower utilization, and (5) systems of administrative organization.

The multitudes of students in colleges and universities in the United States and the amount of money expended, makes education one of the big businesses and marks the United States the most involved nation in the earth in the field of higher education.

Students of this country are becoming highly conscious of the quality in a university and are systematically selecting the university of highest quality to which they can gain admission.

A new, but ever changing set of values and objectives is accepted by the university student of 1960. The new standards are startling as always to their predecessors.

The greatest of a graduate school depends on (1) positive support of its administration and its tradition for learning, (2) the excellence of the graduate student enrolled—his ability to think objectively and show social sensitivity, (3) the training, courage and vision of the faculty, and (4) the quality of the library.

'Menagerie' Opens Tonite

"The Glass Menagerie," one of Tennessee Williams' more touching plays, will begin its one-night run tonight at the Arena Theatre. Described by Dr. Harold I. Hansen, play director, as "A drama of great charm, tenderness and beauty," this Broadway hit explores the struggles of the "little people" to effect rapport with society.

AUTHOR OF "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof" and "A Streetcar Named Desire," Williams' offerings have been among the most controversial dramas of the postwar period. In them he deals with people as he sees them with the veneer and glitter stripped away.

Tickets for "The Glass Menagerie" may be obtained at 124 Speech Center. Admission is either by student body card or $1. Because the Arena Theatre is a "theatre in the round," all seats are equally good. The Arena can accommodate only 60 persons; thus, seats must be obtained for a certain night.

The play will also be presented tomorrow night and Monday through June 26, next week. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Bob Farrell Combo Plays For Dance

The Bob Farrell Combo will play for the student body dance scheduled for 8:30 p.m. tonight at the Smith Family Living Center.

"We urge all summer students to attend," says Summer Vice Pres. Dave Thomas, "and preferably without dates."

The event is being held in the multi-purpose room and adjoining patio, and the stag dance committee will be on hand to assure that everyone has a good time. Students are asked to dress informally and come prepared to relax and get acquainted with the new summer crowd.

Letters to the Editor, which will be run in the Safety Valve on the editorial page, are accepted anytime.

The letters must be signed but names will be withheld from publication if needed. Letters can be put in the Safety Valve box in the University office, downstairs Student Service Center.

Music, Foreign Affairs Highlight Tuesday - Thursday Assemblies

Past Assemblies—follow-up
Carl Fuerstner, special instructor in piano at BYU, presented a concert at the assembly Tuesday in the Joseph Smith auditorium. The premier performance of "Little Dance Suite," a composition of his own, was a feature of the program.

He played "Sonata in C Minor" by Haydn, "in the Night" by Bloch commemorating the 30th anniversary of that composer's birth and a group of selections by Schumann commemorating the anniversary of Schumann's birth.

Dr. Wesley P. Lloyd discussed "Education at Home and Abroad" at the assembly on Thursday. Commenting that recent events had given his subject special meaning, he noted points of interest in institutions of higher learning in foreign countries in Japan there are small colleges and also universities of 30,000 students. Although students in Tokyo may now say that their college days were a riot, usually school life has an even tenor. A youth of India notices the intense activity in American universities, saying that in India a student takes time off to think. Dr. Lloyd remarks that no matter what the crisis, people in Finland can always sleep.

Noting improvement and adjustment occurring in university life in America, he predicted an enrollment of "twelve million students in 1975."
Dr. Lloyd said that a great graduate school has a great faculty, a great library, a great administration and students that think objectively.

News Bureau Staffers Cite Interest, Thrills on Job

Who does it feel to be a discoverer of news for a great university? The personnel of Brigham Young University News Bureau declare they have the job in the journalism field. "Like writing about an exciting city of 10,000 without the accidents and fifth-century encounters," said blonde student Virginia Havens.

"I need such interesting news here," declared Mrs. Marcelle Walker. "Where could I find the career of my baby through school? I become acquainted with the individuals as Vincent J. Philbrick of "Three Lives" fame. Vice President Nixon, Eddie Gilmore are Associated Press, and the Cousins of the Atlantic City."

Virginia Havens and Marcelle Walker, reporters, constitute the core of the News Bureau responsible for the coverage of all information concerning Brigham Young University, and releasing it to all outlets at the same time.

THIS OFFICE is part of whatever happens, whether it is a concert, ball game, research—whatever anyone does on campus, it becomes our baby, and it gets pretty hectic at times," stated Butterworth. ## Speech Center Site For New Union Building

On the planning board is the largest building yet to be constructed on the BYU Campus, the proposed Student Union Building, recently approved by the University Board of Trustees.

Sites for the new Commons Building is the present site of the Speech Center and other temporary buildings just north of the Fletcher Engineering building.

The Student Union Building will serve as student activities and service building and will accommodate some of the numerous activities on campus. Eight wards of the three BYU Stakes will be able to hold regular meetings there without disturbing ordinary functions.

PRESENT PLANS INCLUDE student organizations' offices, ballroom, conference rooms, recreation areas, reception area, and certain commercial services such as cafeteria and dining rooms, snack bar, post office, ticket and supply sales, and others.

Cost for the center will be in excess of four million dollars. Plans call for the church to contribute 25 percent of the amount, with the remainder to be paid from accumulated student fees, alumni and community contributions.

"A MATTER OF RECORD"

"... so Jack Kennedy's father asked him, 'What do you want to be?' And Jack said, 'I want to be President.' And his father said, 'I know about that, but I mean when you grow up.'"

You've probably heard that one recently: it's the latest political barb attributed to Mort Sahl, generally conceded to be the "Dean" of the nation's newest group of comedians referred to as "Monologists."

These comedians will be the subject of this week's column because many of them have recently come into their own as recording stars.

Word of definition. Webster calls a monologist one who gives a monologue. In this instance a comedy monologue. Some people call this the most difficult of all comic routines to put across and some people just call a doctor when they hear it.

TO GET BACK TO Mort Sahl: He is mentioned first since he seems to have been the first to record his comedy routine (generally in performance) for commercial record release. To date he has released four albums, one on Fantasy label and three under the Verve banner.

The Mort Sahl brand of humor is that of an angry young man who seems to be particularly angry with Politics, the AMA, the Army and other "Ethnic" groups. He is a great supporter of jazz, (his latest recorded hit is a five minute routine to open the new "Playboy Jazz Festival" series) and since his initial album release he has become one of the best known comics in the country.

If you keep up with current events, (it's said he takes his material from a daily newspaper and adlibs his entire routine) Mort Sahl can be a very entertaining experience.

Shelly Berman has recorded two albums so far, both on Verve, "Inside Shelly Berman" and "Outside Shelly Berman." Judging from the sales success of these albums Mr. Berman is the most popular of the recording monologists.

Unlike Mort Sahl, Shelly, (his real name is Sheldon) writes all of his material and rehearses it carefully. His routines usually consist of an imaginary phone call to someone one are based on experiences any of us could have and most of us have had. This probably accounts for his great general appeal.

In any event, Shelly Berman is one of the funniest young men to come along in years.

The sick humor of Lenny Bruce is the title of Fantar album which is just that—"Sick Humor." To Lenny Bruce nothing is sacred. There are those that argue that "Sacred Cows" have no business infringing on the humorists' conscience, but generally speaking it takes a pretty open mind to appreciate all the humor to be found in the Lenny Bruce routines.

What is sick humor? Well, in a sketch based on the Joe Graham incident, (the bombing of the airliner out of Denver) Mr. Bruce comes up with, "... got a little game for you to play morn... it's called 'fill out the policy'..."

The quote is not verbatim, but you get the idea "I'm sure if you like 'sick humor,' Lenny Bruce is without peer."

The newest addition to what seems to be a growing collection of humorists on record comes from Warner Bros. The title of the album is The Button Down Mind of Bob Newhart and judging from the initial response from the record buying public, (it jumped into the number 5 spot on the list of best selling albums) Bob Newhart is here to stay. His routines are varied, (from Khrushchev to women drivers via Madis Avenue all in the same album) and packed with laughs from beginning to end.

A name and a talent well worth remembering, Bob Newhart.

Econ Education Workshop Special Projects Begin

Following two weeks of lecture and discussion, participants in the annual Utah Workshop on Economic Education at Brigham Young University are beginning work on special projects which will be printed and distributed throughout the state.

The conference began June 13 and will end July 1. It is being held in Adams Knight Hall at BYU. Nearly fifty Utah teachers are attending the meet.

HIGHLIGHTING the program
Friday (June 24) will be George Taylor, a national representative of AFL-CIO, and H. H. "Bill" Fisher, Salt Lake City businessman. Mr. Taylor's lecture is planned for 9 a.m. and Mr. Fisher's will be at 8 p.m. Their subject will be labor-management relations.

The workshop is sponsored by BYU in cooperation with the Joint Council on Economic Education and the Utah State Department of Public Instruction.
Finances for the event consist of contributions from business and labor organizations and by individuals who want to further economic understanding.

Reports and projects which the participants are preparing will be presented to the entire group before the end of the workshop. One of the reports given last year on "World Trade" was distributed nationally.

SPECIAL EVENTS which are being held in conjunction with the workshop include field trips to business establishments, a canyon party, recreation of various types, and films illustrating some of the topics discussed or to provide entertainment.
Major discussion topics for the meet are Personal Economics, Utah's Economy, National Problems, and International Problems.

Dancers Meet In National Conclave Here

Competition among ballroom dancers and teachers at the national convention of ballroom dancers at Brigham Young University next week will be in three divisions, according to Jody Elder, president of the national group.

Scores of dancers, both amateur and professional, will gather on the BYU campus Monday for the third annual United States All-Around Championship Sweethearts' Ball and Teachers' Convention.

DANCERS UNDER 15 years of age will compete in the junior amateur division, while those 16 years or older will be in the senior bracket. A third group will be made up of professional dancers and teachers.

"Actually, competition is open to all ballroom dancers who may wish to enter," stated Mr. Elder.
As for the definition of an "amateur," he said the organization considers an amateur as one who has not received any form of compensation as an employee, teacher, or exhibitionist at Adagio or ballroom dancing.

PERSONAL gifts and gratuities in any form, excluding trophies and scholarships, if received for the exclusive use or benefit of the receiver, would classify a dancer as a professional.

Winners of the dance competition in all divisions will receive trophies at the Sweethearts Ball the final night of the meet.

Last year the Grand National Championship was staged in Long Beach, Calif. This will be the first time the event has been held in Utah.

Exotic Instrument Concert Draws Critical Raves

"A sidepath to adventure"
... "the nearest thing to a trip into the 17th century," were some expressions describing the ancient instrument's concert in the tightly packed Van Buren Room at College Hall Wednesday evening.

The viola da gamba (meaning "viola for the leg") was the main attraction since it once belonged to the great George Frederick Handel, composer of the "Messiah" but the harpsichords, the spinet, and the recorders as well as the musicianship displayed by the performers were equally as fascinating.

STUDENT performers, directed by prof. J. Homer Wakefield, included Barbara Allen, Mary Monson Briggs, Barbara Costes
Thompson, and Wayne Mayberry.
Opening and closing selections
—concertos in C Major and G Minor — were played on the harpsichords by Miss Barbara Allen and Wayne Mayberry.

A recorder quintet, composed of four student musicians and prof. Wakefield played four Elizabethan numbers with interesting titles as "I loathe that I did love," "Come live with me and be my love," "Dulcina."

MARY MONSON BRIGGS,
accompanied by Barbara Costes Thompson on the spinet, then performed on the seven-stringed viola da gamba. The tones were soft and all ears of the forty or more listeners were rapt with attention. Her numbers included
"Ayre and Saraband" by Jenkins and Spagnoletta," a 16th century number by an anonymous composer.

Rounding out the program were a series: "Pices for Clavi-cin" by Rameau expertly done on the harpsichord by Mayberry, and Mary Allen on her violin beautifully interpreted "Sonata in G Major" by Handel. Barbara Allen accompanied her on the harpsichord.

Following the program many of the audience expended some of their curiosity on examination and testing of the instruments which had performed and many others, most of which belonged to the collection presented to BYU by the late Lotta Lutz Van Buren.
